CSU Extension hosts May 15 Energy Workshop for homeowners

Find information on home energy efficiency measures and renewable energy projects

Littleton, Colo. — Household energy efficiency and renewable energy projects will be the focus of a no-cost Energy Workshop, hosted by the Colorado State University Extension in Arapahoe County. The workshop will take place 7-9 p.m., May 15 at Southglenn Library, 6972 S. Vine St., Centennial.

Cary Weiner, Energy Specialist for Colorado State University Extension, will provide guidance on how to save energy and money at home. Attendees will learn when it's smart to add insulation, whether to invest in an energy-efficient cooling system or furnace, what to understand when it comes to rooftop solar panels and solar gardens, and much more.

Every attendee can choose to receive a free energy-bill analysis to gauge the energy footprint of their home, and learn next steps to reduce their energy costs and improve efficiency. Financial calculators will be available to determine if home energy efficiency or solar projects would be cost-effective.

The workshop is free to attend, but pre-registration is required. To sign up, please call 303-730-1920 or email csu-extension@arapahoegov.com. If you need special accommodations to participate in the training, please inform the Extension office at least five days in advance of the event.
